

Theme: BELIEVER’ S AUTHORITY

Memory Verse: Matthew 28:18 “And Jesus came and spake unto them, saying, All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth”.

Texts: Mathew 21:21-22

Furthermore, we are to always remember that whatever the mountains in our lives, or tempest our voice cannot still; if there are seemingly insurmountable problems, protracted sicknesses, we have One who has unquestionable authority over situations and circumstances. Jesus declares: “All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth”,

And what more, Jesus has the power to perform whatever He has promised. The blasting of the fig tree instantaneously did not escape the attention of the disciples. They were surprised beyond imagination. Miracles are designed to produce, within the recipients and beholders, awe and reverence for God:

They are to instil confidence and trust in Him and to encourage us to depend on God and worship Him.

Whether it is miracle of judgment or miracle of blessing it is expected that man will behold and marvel (tremble) before the Almighty God. In the same vain has Christ bestowed the authority the believers. So with faith the believer has the power to do what Jesus did. He said in Luke chapter ten verse nineteen “Behold I give unto you power to tread upon serpent and scorpions and if you drink any deadly thing it shall not hurt you”. How are believers exercising that authority today?
